Molecular and Supramolecular Information Processing Evgeny Katz, 2013-02-14 Edited by a renowned and much cited chemist this book covers the whole span of molecular computers that are based on non biological systems The contributions by all the major scientists in the field provide an excellent overview of the latest developments in this rapidly expanding area A must have for all researchers working on this very hot topic Perfectly complements Biomolecular Information Processing also by Prof Katz and available as a two volume set

Molecular Logic-based Computation A Prasanna de Silva, 2016-01-13 We all learn in schools factories bars and streets We gather store process and transmit information in society Molecular systems involved in our senses and within our brains allow all this to happen and molecular systems allow living things of all kinds to handle information for the purpose of survival and growth Nevertheless the vital link between molecules and computation was not generally appreciated until a few decades ago Semiconductor based information technology had penetrated society at many levels and the interest in maintaining momentum of this revolution led to the consideration of molecules among others as possible information handlers Such an overlap between the recent engineering oriented revolution with the ancient biology oriented success story is very interesting and George Boole's times in Ireland 150 years ago produced the logic ideas that provide the foundations of computation to this day Molecular logic and computation is a field which is 17 years young has had a healthy growth and is a story which deserves to be told It is a growing branch of chemical science which highlights the connection between information technology engineering and biological and chemistry The author and co workers of this publication launched molecular logic as an experimental field by publishing the first research in the primary literature in 1993 and are uniquely placed to recount how the field has grown There is no other book at present on molecular logic and computation and is more comprehensive than that found in any review available so far It shows how designed molecules can play the role of information processors in a wide variety of situations once we are educated by those information processors already available in the semiconductor electronics business and in the natural world Following a short history of the field is a set of primers on logic computing and photochemical principles which are an essential basis in this field The book covers all of the Boolean logic gates driven by a single input and all of those with double inputs and the wide range of designs which lie beneath these gates is a particular highlight The easily available diversity of chemical systems is another highlight especially when it leads to reconfigurable logic gates Further on in the book molecular arithmetic and other more complex logic operations including those with a memory and those which stray beyond binary are covered Then follows molecular computing approaches which lie outside the Boolean blueprint including quantum phenomena and finally the book catalogues the useful real life applications of molecular logic and computation which are already available This book is an authoritative state of the art reference and a one stop shop concerning the current state of the field for scientists academics and postgraduate students

Methods and Special Applications in Bacterial Ecology Edward R. Leadbetter, Jeanne S. Poindexter, 1985 Volume 2 Chemosensors of Ion and Molecule Recognition J.P. Desvergne, A.W. Czarnik, 2012-12-06 In the broad field of supramolecular chemistry the design and hence the use of chemosensors for ion and molecule recognition have developed at an extraordinary rate This imaginative and creative area which involves the interface of different disciplines e.g organic and inorganic chemistry physical chemistry biology medicine environmental science is not only fundamental in nature It is also clear that progress is most rewarding for several new sensor applications deriving from the specific signal delivered by the analyte probe interaction Indeed if calcium sensing in real time for biological purposes is actually possible owing to the emergence of efficient fluorescent receptors other elements can also be specifically detected identified and finally titrated using tailored chemosensors Pollutants such as heavy metals or radionuclides are among the main targets since their detection and removal could be envisioned at very low concentrations with in addition sensors displaying specific and strong complexing abilities Besides various species of biological interest or others the list is large including sugars and other miscellaneous molecules such as oxygen and carbon dioxide can be actually probed with optodes and similar devices The present volume in which the key lectures of the workshop are collected gives a survey of the main developments in the field The success of the workshop mainly came from the high quality of the lectures the invited short talks the two posters sessions and the many very lively discussions which without doubt will produce positive outcomes
