Analyse how an extended composed text was structured to establish an essential concept. In the novel A Thousand Splendid Suns composed by Khaled Hosseini, the substantial idea or style that is represented throughout the book is that sexism has terrible effects by negatively affecting the lifestyle lived by "inferior" genders and causes oppression which squashes hope in some individuals and for other people, it produces a requirement to defy and escape this injustice. This is shown to us through the preliminary contrast of qualities in between Mariam and Laila. Hosseini develops this essential concept through key occasions in the novel such as when Mariam marries Rasheed, Laila marries Rasheed, Tariq's "resurrection. The novel is structured chronologically to develop this crucial concept. When Mariam is informed that she has a suitor, she is exceptionally shocked and does not wish to be married. However, she is forced into this organized marital relationship since she is an illegitimate child. Her daddy, Jalil who had 3 better halves decided to have sexual intercourse with Mariam's mother (who was a house cleaner) and resulting in Mariam and her existing invalid status. This causes excellent embarrassment to Jalil which is reinforced by the quote: "She was being sent away because she was the walking breathing embodiment of their pity." This reveals that Mariam is undesirable and unloved due to the fact that she is being cast away and has to suffer the effects of her parent's actions. When she marries Rasheed, she is at very first apprehensive and misses her old life, however then she feels a kinship with Rasheed after understanding he suffered similar sadness and losses that she felt. Nevertheless, when Mariam has 7 pregnancies and miscarriages, Rasheed ends up being cold and far-off and increasingly violent towards Mariam. This violent behaviour intensifies and reaches the climax when Mariam cooks rice for Rasheed. Rasheed thinks that the rice is too hard and overreacts by shoving pebbles into her mouth and forcing her to chew them. "He shoved 2 fingers into her mouth and pried it open, then forced the cold hard pebbles into it." This shocking ruthlessness that Rasheed depicts symbolises the personal oppression that restricts Mariam and squashes her hopes about marital relationship. Mariam was hoping that the marriage would be something that could lead to contentment and possibly love, however, the marriage actually descends into abuse and oppression because Rasheed believes himself to be superior to Mariam by physically and mentally abusing her which further reinforces my idea that sexism has devastating effects by negatively impacting the quality of life lived by "inferior" genders and causes oppression which crushes hope in some individuals and for other individuals, it creates a need to defy and escape this oppression. Laila is pressured to marry Rasheed because both her parents were killed and she was told that her best friend and lover, Tariq was also "killed" and Laila is pregnant with Tariq's baby, which is why she decided to marry Rasheed, not because she loved him but so that the baby could survive. This statement is supported by a quote from the book: "But even...
