white above her lee rail the weather rigging taut with the strain put upon it vibrated like the bass strings of a harp the lee rigging sagging in proportion Kenneth leaned forward his face eager his hand grasping the tiller so hard that the knuckles showed white through his tanned skin Frank and Arthur lay far out to windward as far out as they could get Six o'clock cried Arthur looking up from the clock he held in his hand And by Jove you've won Rounding the lighthouse pier the yacht slipped in behind the crib and rested in smooth water Well old man I take my hat off to you and Frank suited the action to the word That was the finest bit of sailing I ever saw Ken you're a dandy Kenneth was still breathing quickly with the excitement and exhilaration of the race with time His satisfaction in the performance of his boat was only secondary to the pleasure he felt in his friends' praise Again luck had served them well For the next three days a storm raged over the lake that made the boys very thankful that they were sheltered in a safe harbor This tempest was a forerunner of what was to come a foretaste of what the young mariners were likely to experience The sudden storms for which the lake region was famous at this time of year had begun and would continue until navigation was closed
