categories of potential reader. Their respective fields overlap to a considerable extent both are concerned with economic optimization problems and the use of Linear Programming to problems of production planning is simply applied theory of production. The non economist reader may but should not pass over Chapter IV in which the linear production model is linked up with the economic theory of production. Without being an advanced text the book aims at covering enough ground to make the reader capable of detecting, formulating and solving such linear planning problems as he may encounter within his particular field. No heavy demands are made on the reader's mathematical proficiency except for the proofs in the Appendix which may be skipped if desired. The mathematical exposition is purely elementary involving only simple linear relations. In the author's experience the pedagogical advantages of this approach as compared with the use of matrix algebra amply justify the sacrifice of mathematical elegance and typographical simplicity particularly in explaining the simplex method.
