Sense and Stigma in the Gospels Louise J. Lawrence, 2013-10-24 The senses are used within New Testament texts as instruments of knowledge and power and thus constitute important mediators of cultural knowledge and experience Likewise those instances where sensory faculty is perceived to be disabled in some way also become key sites for ideological commentary and critique However often biblical scholarship itself disabled by eye-centric and text-centric norms has read sensory disabled characters as nothing more than inert sites of healing their agency including their alternative sensory modes of communication and resistance to oppression remain largely unaddressed In response Louise J. Lawrence seeks to initiate a variety of interdisciplinary dialogues with disability studies and sensory anthropology in a quest to refigure characters with sensory disabilities featured in the gospels and provide alternative interpretations of their conditions and social interactions In each instance the identity of those stigmatised as other according to particular physiological social and cultural norms are recovered by exploring ethnographic accounts which document the stories of those experiencing similar rejection on account of perceived sensory difference in diverse cross-cultural settings Through this process these disabled characters are recast as individuals capable of employing certain strategies which destabilize the stigma imposed upon them and tactical performers who can subversively achieve their social goals
