Music, in a Foreign Language Andrew Crumey,1994 Two people meet on a train the young man is imagining a novel and imagining the life of the young woman A waiter rushes out to find a girl he fancied who hasn t paid her bill only to find a diary in which their fictitious flirtation is anatomised But the story actually begins with a man taking a leak after making love to his wife He has the inklings of a novel but thoughts will keep intruding with all their seductive possibilities The man on the train is living in an England that has decided with characteristic diffidence and lack of fuss that it no longer wants to live under a totalitarian regime which has lasted for 40 years I say totalitarian but think more of Brazil a world of terribly genial tyranny where officialdom tries so hard to be accommodating And Duncan has another story one prompted by the memory of his father s car crashing down a slope As with all good postmodernist novels the endless digressions are more soothing than jarring Murrough O Brien in The Independent on Sunday The strikingly inventive structure of this novel allows the author to explore the similarities between fictions and history At any point there are infinite possibilities for the way the story a life or the history of the world might progress The whole work is enjoyably unpredictable and poses profound questions about the issues of motivation choice and morality The Sunday Times A writer more interested in inheriting the mantle of Pynchon and Kundera than Amis and Drabble Like much of the most interesting British fiction around at the moment
