Standing in the Need Katherine E. Browne, 2015-09-01 Standing in the Need presents an intimate account of an African American family's ordeal after Hurricane Katrina. Before the storm struck, this family of one hundred fifty members lived in the bayou communities of St. Bernard Parish, just outside New Orleans. Rooted there like the wild red iris of the coastal wetlands, the family had gathered for generations to cook and share homemade seafood meals, savor conversation, and refresh their interconnected lives. In this lively narrative, Katherine Browne weaves together voices and experiences from eight years of post-Katrina research. Her story documents the heartbreaking struggles to remake life after everyone in the family faced ruin. Cast against a recovery landscape managed by outsiders, the efforts of family members to help themselves could get no traction; outsiders undermined any sense of their control over the process. In the end, the insights of the story offer hope. Written for a broad audience and supported by an array of photographs and graphics, Standing in the Need offers readers an inside view of life at its most vulnerable. Toxic Trailers United States. Myosins Lynne M. Coluccio, 2007-11-15 Few would have predicted 20 years ago that myosins constitute a superfamily with at least two dozen classes and that these molecular motors are involved in a multitude of intracellular activities including cell division, cell movement, intracellular transport, and signal transduction. Application of state-of-the-art cellular and molecular biological, structural biological, genetic, biochemical, and biophysical techniques has provided and continues to provide critical information regarding the structure-function relationship and the cellular roles of various myosins in organisms as diverse as protozoa, yeast, plants, and higher animals. The association of myosins with diseases including neurological disorders, immunodeficiencies, cardiomyopathies, hearing and vision loss, testify to the importance of understanding the biochemical properties and cellular roles of myosins. The 16 chapters in this volume summarize the tremendous progress made in studying members of the myosin superfamily in recent years and offer critical insight into what future research will yield. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the authors of this volume. It was a pleasure to work with each of you, and I thank you for the considerable efforts in making this international endeavor possible. I also thank John Trinick from the University of Leeds, UK, for the elegant montage of images of single molecules of myosins on the cover, which beautifully shows the structures of some of these amazing molecules. The able assistance of Marlies Vlot from Springer and Indumadhi Srinivasan from Integra Software Services for production of the book is greatly appreciated. Black Island Frank Arneil Walker, 2006 Black Island takes the reader to KorUcula, an island in the Adriatic. The author engages with the place and the people, describing landscapes, recalling joys, and remembering sadnesses. Above all, he speaks of the magic moments of shared hospitality and friendship which live in the memory of all those made welcome in KorUcula. Road Atlas Rand McNally and Company, 2006. Road Atlas: United States, Canada, and Mexico Rand McNally and Company, 2006. The Road Atlas
