O. Tomlin, 2024-10-09 The Uley Tablets is the first full publication of the eighty Roman lead writing tablets found in the excavation of a Romano British temple in the Cotswolds the temple of the god Mercury at Uley Gloucestershire together with two from the nearby site of Tarlton Like those found in the hot spring at Bath they are curse tablets so called because they seek divine intervention against the writer's enemies who are mostly thieves unknown They complain of farm animals being stolen or bewitched even a stolen beehive the first document of bee keeping in Britain the theft of clothing such as gloves cloaks and gaiters woman's underwear the theft of rings and sums of money ranging from two mites to a hundred thousand denarii In formalised language they ask the god to recover their property and punish the thieves with ill health or the greatest death These tablets are the richest collection of manuscripts from the countryside of Roman Britain unique as a written witness to the social and economic history of the province since they were not found in the usual urban or military context They are a major new source for studying the language whether written or spoken of the civil population The Uley Tablets provide a practical lesson in how to decipher Roman handwriting and in this volume they are transcribed and translated with detailed commentary each inscribed face illustrated with a photograph and line drawing These texts are preceded by eleven introductory chapters which outline their context and content the way in which the god was approached the language and handwriting employed and the implications for the study of literacy in Roman Britain The Uley Tablets offer a vivid contribution to ancient history with a disturbing modern echo Index to Mathematical Problems, 1980-1984
