

The First World War Study Guide

Circumstances that led to The Great War (WWI)

- 1) Militarism (Arms race) - There was a massive increase in military spending that evened the playing field amongst European nations. Since many nations now had a modern and robust military, it made war more likely because nations feared defeat less. There was more thirst for war, and unfortunately influential people existed who desired war.

- 2) Alliances were formed that would eventually pull additional nations into war.

Triple Entente (Allied Powers): England/France/Russia

Triple Alliance (Central Powers): Germany/Italy/Austria-Hungary

- 3) Imperialism and industrialization - As nations industrialized, their ability to manufacture goods and wage war increased. Also, industrialization led to a desire for more land and natural resources. Competition to imperialize land in Africa and Asia led to tension between nations.

- 4) Nationalism - Many countries in Europe had great pride and, in some cases, felt superior to other nations.

- 5) Assassination - Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assassinated and brought about conflict, however, the stage for war had already been set long before the murder. There were clearly leaders and financiers that wanted war, and were not looking for peace by all means necessary.

Technology of WWI

Trenches were dug to protect from enemy fire. The trenches offered awful living conditions for soldiers, were filled with rodents, and made the fighting during the war deplorable. Leaving the trench was dangerous and led to many soldiers dying on both sides of the conflict.
