Mineral Exploration

- Mining companies hire mineralogists to locate areas where there is a high probability of finding the mineral resource they are looking for.
- Planes are used to help find minerals with specialized instruments that identify changes in gravity, magnetism, and radioactivity.
- Next they collect samples from areas that seem promising.
- If the ore grade is high enough, and there appears to be enough ore, then a mine is opened.
- After all the ore is cut or dug out, then the mining company is supposed to restore the land.
