Age-Friendly Cities and Communities in International Comparison Thibault Moulaert, Suzanne Garon, 2015-12-01 The supportive role of urban spaces in active aging is explored on a world scale in this unique resource using the WHO's Age Friendly Cities and Community model Case studies from the U S Canada Australia Hong Kong and elsewhere demonstrate how the model translates to fit diverse social political and economic realities across cultures and continents ways age friendly programs promote senior empowerment and how their value can be effectively assessed Age friendly criteria for communities are defined and critiqued while extensive empirical data describe challenges as they affect elders globally and how environmental support can help meet them These chapters offer age friendly cities as a corrective to the overemphasis on the medical aspects of elders lives and should inspire new research practice and public policy Included in the coverage A critical review of the WHO Age Friendly Cities Methodology and its implementation Seniors perspectives on age friendly communities The implementation of age friendly cities in three districts of Argentina Age friendly New York City a case study Toward an age friendly European Union Age friendliness childhood and dementia toward generationally intelligent environments With its balance of attention to universal and culture specific concerns Age Friendly Cities and Communities in International Comparison will be of particular interest to sociologists gerontologists and policymakers Given the rapid adoption of the age friendly perspective following its development by the World Health Organization the critical assessment offered in this volume is especially welcome Professor Chris Phillipson University of Manchester Community Cohesion and Migration Great Britain. Adult Learner Perspectives on National Education Goal 5 Guidelines ,1993 Handbook of Adolescent Health Psychology William T. O'Donohue,Lorraine T. Benuto,Lauren Woodward Tolle,2014-07-08 Adolescence is a pivotal period of development with respect to health and illness It is during adolescence that many positive health behaviors are consolidated and important health risk behaviors are first evident thus adolescence is a logical time period for primary prevention In addition the predominant causes of morbidity and mortality in adolescence are quite different from those of adults indicating that early identification and treatment of adolescent health problems must be directed to a unique set of targets in this age group Moreover because of the particular developmental issues that characterize adolescence intervention efforts designed for adults are often inappropriate or ineffective in an adolescent population Even when chronic illnesses are congenital or begin in childhood the manner in which the transition from childhood to adolescence to young adulthood is negotiated has important implications for disease outcomes throughout the remainder of the person s life span Organized in five major sections General Issues Developmental Issues Treatment and Training Mental Health and Physical Health and 44 chapters Handbook of Adolescent Health Psychology addresses the common and not so common health issues that tend to affect adolescents Coverage includes Context and perspectives in adolescent health psychology Health literacy health maintenance and disease prevention in adolescence Physical disorders such as asthma obesity physical injury and chronic pain Psychological disorders such as substance abuse attention deficit hyperactivity disorder depression and eating disorders Congenital chronic diseases such as type 1 diabetes and spina bifida Handbook of Adolescent Health Psychology is the definitive reference for pediatricians family physicians health psychologists clinical social workers rehabilitation specialists

International ethical guidelines for health-related research involving humans Council for International Organizations of Medical Sciences (CIOMS) ,2016-12-06 Progress towards a world where all can enjoy optimal health and health care is crucially dependent on all kinds of research including research involving humans Involving humans in medical research is necessary to improve the knowledge base on which medicine should be based At the same time individuals participating in health related research have individual human rights and have a right to be protected against the risks that research may bring to them The tension between these two considerations has led the medical community to endorse ethical guidelines for health related research Research Ethics Committees can use these guidelines to evaluate whether a given research protocol is ethically acceptable or not CIOMS in association with the World Health Organization started its work on ethics in health related research in the late 1970s Accordingly CIOMS set out in cooperation with WHO to prepare guidelines to indicate how the ethical principles set forth in the Declaration of Helsinki of the World Medical Association could be effectively applied particularly in low resource settings given their socio economic circumstances laws and regulations and executive and administrative arrangements Since then revised editions of the CIOMS ethical guidelines were published in 1993 and 2002 New developments in research have prompted CIOMS to again revise their ethical guidelines The result is now available in this new publication In the new 2016 version of the ethical Guidelines CIOMS provides answers to a number of pressing issues in research ethics The Council does so by stressing the need for research having scientific and social value by providing special guidelines for health related research in low resource settings by detailing the provisions for involving vulnerable groups in research and for describing under what conditions biological samples and health related data can be used for research In providing this new version CIOMS hopes to ensure that the ethical Guidelines remain a living document that provides reasoned conditions for research in order to meet the challenges of modern research <https://doi.org/10.56759/rgxl17405>
