

Final Chapters 6-9 Study Guide

Introduction

Introduction to psychology is the scientific study of behavior and the mind. It is a branch of science that seeks to understand the principles and mechanisms that govern the behavior of individuals and groups. The study of psychology is interdisciplinary, drawing on knowledge from biology, chemistry, physics, and other sciences. It is also a practical science, as it seeks to apply its findings to improve human health and well-being.

Courtroom Talk and Neocolonial Control Diana Eades, 2008-09-25 The book uses critical sociolinguistic analysis to examine the social consequences of courtroom talk The focus of the study is the cross examination of three Australian Aboriginal boys who were prosecution witnesses in the case of six police officers charged with their abduction The analysis reveals how the language mechanisms allowed by courtroom rules of evidence serve to legitimize neocolonial control over Indigenous people In the propositions and assertions made in cross examination and their adoption by judicial decision makers the three boys were constructed not as victims of police abuse but rather in terms of difference deviance and delinquency This identity work addresses fundamental issues concerning what it means to be an Aboriginal young person as well as constraints about how to perform or live this identity and the rights to which Aboriginal people can lay claim while legitimizing police control over their freedom of movement Understanding this courtroom talk requires analysis of the sociopolitical and historical actions and structures within which the courtroom hearing was embedded Through this analysis the interrelatedness of structure agency constraint and change which is central to critical sociolinguistics becomes apparent In its investigation of language ideologies that underpin courtroom talk as well as the details of how language is used and the social consequences of this talk the book highlights the need for far reaching changes to courtroom rules of evidence
