of the colony into their proper places; your job was going to be to take a tour of the place and verify that everything was up and running. ("Verify" means to make sure.)

Instead, something went wrong on the orbiter, and it blew up before it had a chance to drop off its payload. Pieces of the orbiter and the colony rained all over the landscape. Your job is to find that piece, or pieces if there's more than one.

Landing site

You are standing at the base of your ship. The onboard computers selected this general area as the most likely place to find salvageable remains of what would have been the colony. ("Salvageable" means you can save it.) The battered rust-red landscape stretches out before you in every direction, pitted and pockmarked and littered with boulders. A ladder leads up to the hatch of your ship.
