Accounting Information Systems

Course Introduction

Accounting Information Systems is concerned with the way computerized information systems impact how accounting data is captured, processed, and communicated. The course introduces you to the people, technology, procedures, and controls that are necessary to conduct internal and external e-business, with an emphasis on the internal controls over such systems.

Course Competencies

Upon completion of this course, you should be able to:

- converse easily about the people, hardware, software, network, and data components of an organization's accounting information system,
- study and make recommendations about ways to improve internal controls for various accounting subsystems in an organization,
- understand the unique internal control challenges presented by computerized accounting systems, and
- prepare and interpret data flow diagrams and document flowcharts.
