Banking's Final Exam Morris Goldstein, 2017-05-30 Spurred by the success of the first stress test of US banks toward the end of the global economic crisis in 2009 stress testing of large financial institutions has become the cornerstone of banking supervision worldwide The aim of the tests is to determine which banks are adequately capitalized under severe economic shocks and to order corrective measures for those that are vulnerable In Banking's Final Exam one of the world's leading experts on banking regulation concludes that the tests administered on both sides of the Atlantic suffer from fundamental weaknesses leading to a false sense of reassurance about the safety and soundness of the banking system Some weaknesses can be corrected within the existing bank capital regime but others will require bold reforms including higher minimum capital requirements for the largest and most systemically important banks The banking industry is likely to resist these reforms but this book explains why their objections do not hold water

Learning a non-native language in a naturalistic environment: Insights from behavioural and neuroimaging research Christos Pliatsikas, Vicky Chondrogianni, 2015-09-02 It is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language's per se these factors include the age of acquisition AoA of the target language's the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate Recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language This can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used Existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing More recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure This Research Topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment These include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies

Objective Commerce (MCQs For Competitive Examinations) - Volume 2 - Business Management Dheeraj Kumar Singh, Exam Literacy Jake Hunton, 2018-08-13 In Exam Literacy, a guide to doing what works and not what doesn't to better prepare students for exams, Jake Hunton focuses on the latest cognitive research into revision techniques and delivers proven strategies which actually work. Foreword by Professor John Dunlosky. Read, highlight, reread, repeat. If such a revision cycle sounds all too wearily familiar, you and your students need a better route to exam success. And in light of the recent decision to make all subjects at GCSE linear, so that students will be tested in one off sittings, it will be even more important that students are well equipped to acquire and recall key content ahead of their exams. In this wide-ranging guide to effective exam preparation, Jake Hunton casts a careful eye over a wide range of research into revision techniques and details the strategies which have been proven to deliver the best results. With plenty of practical suggestions and subject-specific examples, Exam Literacy provides teachers with user-friendly advice on how they can make the content they cover stick and shares up-to-date evidence-based information on the nature of learning and the various types of memory. How to improve students' retention of knowledge and recall of content. Why popular revision techniques such as rereading, highlighting, and summarising may not be as effective as you think. How revision strategies that have been identified as being more effective, such as interleaving, elaborative interrogation, self-explanation, and retrieval practice, can be embedded into day-to-day teaching. How students can be encouraged to make use of these winning strategies when revising independently. The Routledge Handbook of Women's Experiences of Criminal Justice Isla Masson, Natalie Booth, 2022-10-25 This Handbook brings together the voices of a range of contributors interested in the many varied experiences of women in criminal justice systems and who are seeking to challenge the status quo.
