Education, Equality and Human Rights Mike Cole, 2011-11-18 Education Equality and Human Rights addresses the issue of human rights and its relationship to education in the 21st century Each of the five equality issues of gender race sexuality disability and social class are covered as areas in their own right and in relation to education Special Educational Needs Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education and Skills Committee, 2006-07-06 This publication contains a range of oral and written evidence taken by the Committee in relation to its inquiry into special educational needs SEN provision including contributions from Baroness Warnock DfES officials and local authorities Ofsted the Audit Commission the Disability Rights Commission SEN advisors and organisations charities and trade unions Place, Not Race Sheryll Cashin, 2014-05-06 From a nationally recognized expert a fresh and original argument for bettering affirmative action Race based affirmative action had been declining as a factor in university admissions even before the recent spate of related cases arrived at the Supreme Court Since Ward Connerly kickstarted a state by state political mobilization against affirmative action in the mid 1990s the percentage of four year public colleges that consider racial or ethnic status in admissions has fallen from 60 percent to 35 percent Only 45 percent of private colleges still explicitly consider race with elite schools more likely to do so although they too have retreated For law professor and civil rights activist Sheryll Cashin this isn't entirely bad news because as she argues affirmative action as currently practiced does little to help disadvantaged people The truly disadvantaged black and brown children trapped in high poverty environs are not getting the quality schooling they need in part because backlash and wedge politics undermine any possibility for common sense public policies Using place instead of race in diversity programming she writes will better amend the structural disadvantages endured by many children of color while enhancing the possibility that we might one day move past the racial resentment that affirmative action engenders In Place Not Race Cashin reimagines affirmative action and champions place based policies arguing that college applicants who have thrived despite exposure to neighborhood or school poverty are deserving of special consideration Those blessed to have come of age in poverty free havens are not Sixty years since the historic decision we're undoubtedly far from meeting the promise of Brown v Board of Education but Cashin offers a new framework for true inclusion for the millions of children who live separate and unequal lives Her proposals include making standardized tests optional replacing merit based financial aid with need based financial aid and recruiting high achieving students from overlooked places among other steps that encourage cross racial alliances and social mobility A call for action toward the long overdue promise of equality Place Not Race persuasively shows how the social costs of racial preferences actually outweigh any of the marginal benefits when effective race neutral alternatives are available The Datafication of Primary and Early Years Education Alice

Bradbury, Guy Roberts-Holmes, 2017-10-02 The Datafication of Primary and Early Years Education explores and critically analyses the growing dominance of data in schools and early childhood education settings. Recognising the shift in practice and priorities towards the production and analysis of attainment data that are compared locally, nationally and internationally, this important book explores the role and impact of digital data in the data-obsessed school. Through insightful case studies, the book critiques policy priorities which facilitate and demand the use of attainment data within a neoliberal education system which is already heavily focused on assessment and accountability. Using an approach influenced by policy sociology and post-foundational frameworks, the book considers how data are productive of data-driven teacher and child subjectivities. The text explores how data have become an important part of making teachers' work visible within systems which are both disciplinary and controlling while often reducing the complexity of children's learning to single numbers. Key ideas covered include: The impact of data on the individual teacher and their pedagogical practice, particularly in play-based early years classrooms; The problems of collecting data through assessment of young children; How schools respond to increased pressure to produce the right data or how they play with numbers; How data affect children and teachers' identities; International governance and data comparison, including international comparison of young children's attainment; Private sector involvement in data processing and analysis. The Datafication of Primary and Early Years Education offers a unique insight into the links between data policy and practice and is a crucial read for all interested in the ways in which data are affecting teachers, practitioners and children.

Researching the Socio-Political Dimensions of Mathematics Education Paola Valero, Robyn Zevenbergen, 2006-04-11 Mathematics education research as a discipline is situated at the confluence of an array of diffuse, seemingly incommensurable and radically divergent discourses. Research claims that have grown out of mathematics education are wide-ranging and antagonistic rather than circumscribed by hidebound disciplinary frames. While there has never been a unified totalising discipline of knowledge labelled mathematics education research and while it has always been a contested terrain, it is fair to say that the master paradigm out of which this field has been generated has been that of cognitive psychology. Mainstream mathematics education knowledge refracts the master discourse of psychology whereby cognition serves as the central, privileged and defining concept, clearly delimiting its possibilities for serving as a social tool of democratic transformation. The central point of departure of this new collection is that mathematics education research is insufficiently univocal to support the type of uncompromising interpretation that cognitive psychologists would bring to it. The hallmark contribution of this pathbreaking volume, edited by Paola Valero and Robyn Zevenbergen, is the paradigmatic shift the authors have effected in the field of mathematics education research, taking up a position at the faultline of socio-cultural analysis and critical pedagogy.

Learning and Teaching Mathematics—Weaving the Nexus of Values, Attitudes and Beliefs Tasos Barkatsas, 2025-10-02 This collection represents two decades of dedicated and rigorous empirical research spanning across multiple dimensions of mathematics education.

Through a theoretical approach that highlights the significance of analytical depth in the research process the studies included in this book explore significant themes in Mathematics Education that span across mathematics learning student attitudes toward mathematics beliefs engagement values motivation gender differences technology integration and effective pedagogical strategies over the past two decades The scope of this work makes a substantial contribution to the ongoing discourse on best practices in mathematics teaching equity in mathematics education and the evolving and significant role of inclusive mathematics education in the 21st century and beyond One of the key strengths of this collection can be found in its simultaneous focus on local and global perspectives

Using Effectiveness Data for School Improvement Anthony Kelly, Christopher Downey, 2010-12-13 This book lifts the lid on a range of data gathering techniques and methods and reveals the provenance and shortcomings of education data collection and utilisation

Testing and Assessment Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Children, Schools and Families Committee, 2008 Testing and Assessment Third report of session 2007 08 Vol 2 Oral and written Evidence
