Evidence Check 1 Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology, 2009 This report HCP 44 session 2009 10 ISBN 9780215542663 from the Science and Technology Committee looks at literacy programmes evidence check and concludes that expectations by the Department for Children Schools and Families of the quality of the evidence base for reading programmes are worryingly low It urges the Government to commission randomised controlled trials RCTs The Committee also states it is particularly concerned about the quality of evidence demonstrating cost effectiveness of different programmes and further recommends that the Government reviews its guidelines on RCT design it says even Wikipedia is more thorough and informative The Committee also concludes that the Government's focus on early literacy interventions and phonics based teaching is based on the best available evidence the use of Reading Recovery is based on a lower quality of evidence than the Committee is comfortable with and that the decision to introduce Reading Recovery nationally is not evidence based The Committee further expressed alarm that there was a complete lack of randomised controlled trials using standardised test scores for the Reading Recovery programme in the UK school system before national implementation of the programme

Special Educational Needs Michael Farrell, 2004-01-23 This book provides a succinct overview of SEN policy and is likely to be a useful resource for those undertaking accredited courses related to SEN and inclusion SENCO Update The combination of the theoretical and practical aspects of special educational needs makes this book a valuable resource for practitioners and should enable them to develop reflective and insightful practice Michael Shevlin Trinity College Dublin TES Extra Special Needs This is a comprehensive and thorough overview of the Special Educational Needs SEN landscape as it is in the UK today The book is very clearly aimed at specialists in the field and Michael Farrell incorporates developments that are sometimes ignored emotional intelligence for example There is a nice touch in that each chapter concludes with thinking points I could see that the book could make a sound basis for a training course on SEN based around these The book is highly readable though I expect it is more likely to be used as a reference text or as I suggested above as a basis for training However it is used it is invaluable as an up to date assessment of SEN in 2004 and highly recommended to anyone working or planning to work in this field Nurturing Potential Essential reading for every SENCO in fact for everyone involved in special educational needs By examining the background to key areas the book gives teachers managers and advisers the depth of understanding that is necessary to make informed choices about what constitutes the most effective practice Dr Tony Lingard Head of Learning Support Cambourne Science and Community College With its scope and depth of coverage this book provides a useful resource through combining background information theory and practice as well as the tools for further research for both novice and experienced practitioner Ms Lyn Hurst Headteacher This book provides a route map for special education Through examining related disciplines which illuminate the field it considers how special education can be better understood The author views issues in special education within the wider disciplines of history sociology law politics ethics economics medicine and psychology He looks at the national local and school frameworks in which special education operates and shows how provision for pupils with special educational needs is influenced by structures procedures and practices at national local and school levels Features include the ethics of preventing disability lesson s history identifying value in sociological perspectives psychological and other Models of teaching aspects of the National Framework aspects of the Local Framework the School SEN Policy the Curriculum and School Organization This book is essential reading for teachers headteachers Special Educational Needs co ordinators and all those who have an interest in special education and managing inclusion Using
