Dance is a vital art. It is an effective means of expression. Facial expressions and hand gestures are the essence of dance. A dancer can express such feelings as joy, anger or helplessness without saying a word. People have been dancing since time immemorial. Pre-historic people probably made up dances to gain favour of the gods. Many Indian tribes danced while appealing for rain and good crops. But these days, people dance simply to have fun or entertain others. Dance is not merely a fun social activity, it is also an ideal exercise. Twenty minutes of dancing can burn as many as 200 to 400 calories. Dancing can reduce stress, tension, anxiety and even depression. Dance, like music, knows no boundaries — geographic, linguistic or racial. It is a great unifying force.
