

INTRODUCTION STANDARD SIMULATION SPECIFICATIONS

MITAGS/PMI use the latest Transas operating system to drive all of their simulators. Transas is renowned for its exceptional visual graphics acuity and in-house hydrodynamic teams. In addition, Transas has proven to be very responsive regarding customer feedback. Accordingly, their simulation software offers many unique features that cannot be found in similar products offered by other simulation providers.

FAST TIME SIMULATION

The portable "Fast Time" Simulator uses the same hydrodynamic models and visual databases as the Full-Mission Simulator. Fast-time simulation can be easily transferred to the Full-Mission Bridge Simulator. However, the primary difference between the Fast-Time Simulator and the Full-Mission Simulator is the emulation of the hardware controls. The autopilot on the Fast-Time Simulator replicates the Anschütz Pilot Star D, with full functionality of the actual hardware. For the purposes of research, the Anschütz has been programmed to follow track lines. It works directly with the ship's path, which reflects the hydrodynamics of the vessel model. The simulation can be run at a twenty to one (20:1) speed ratio. It can also be replayed, if necessary, in the Full-Mission Bridge Simulator. Files can be converted to Windows Media® for playback on any computer.

VISUAL GRAPHICS

Transas' graphics are acknowledged as the "very best" in marine simulation. Examples of the realistic graphics that can be generated by MITAGS/PMI when using the Transas system are throughout this guide. The proprietary software uses ECDIS data for the development of the base for visual, radar, and ECDIS displays. AutoCad® drawings are overlaid into the scenes creating excellent depth perception.

ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROLS

The Transas system provides a realistic display of all weather conditions, various atmospheric phenomena, time of day, visibility and illumination effects, reflection, and glare on the water. Tides and currents can also be adjusted, as needed, and programmed to change during the simulation with buoys generating current feathers. In addition to the overall condition parameters, MITAGS/PMI can also set-up environmental zones to create such conditions as fog banks, local wind, current effects, and local wave effects.
