Abbyy Recognition Server Manual:

No specimen left behind: mass digitization of natural history collections Vincent Smith, 2012-07-20 Centuries of exploration and discovery have documented the diversity of life on Earth. Records of this biodiversity are for the most part distributed across varied and distinct natural history collections worldwide. This makes the task of extracting and mobilising the information within these collections an immense challenge. In this special issue of ZooKeys 18 papers by 81 authors examine progress and prospects for mass digitising entire natural history collections. These papers provide a snapshot of activity in what is a fast moving field that is seeing ever increasing degrees of collaboration across disciplines and between collection based institutions. Examples of research covered by these articles include a description to efforts to digitise 30 million plant invertebrate and vertebrate specimens at NCB Naturalis in the Netherlands, new scanning and telemicroscopy solutions to digitise the millions of pinned insect specimens held in the Australian National Insect Collection and its European and North American counterparts, citizen science projects being used to crowdsource the transcription of thousands of specimen labels and field notebooks and new data portals providing central access to millions of biological specimens across Europe. Many of these projects deal with the unique challenges associated with major collections that have built up over several centuries with different communities of practices and different user communities. Despite many differences, standards for collection acquisition, preservation and documentation are broadly consistent, meaning that there is sufficient common ground to bring together the enormous amounts of data that are being exposed through mass digitisation efforts. These data will become the new frontier for natural history collection management and research in the next decade. E-doc, 2008

Intelligent Document Processing Lahiru Fernando, 2023-08-09 Document processing is a topic that has gained much traction for many years due to its complexity and manual effort. Many document management systems got introduced to simplify document management. At the same time, Robotic Process Automation (RPA) evolved at a rapid pace, connecting with state-of-the-art technologies such as Machine Learning (ML), Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Natural Language Processing (NLP) to understand the ways humans communicate. The technology used for AI, ML and NLP enabled the world to build models that can learn by themselves and use their intelligence to understand the content of any given document. Today, Intelligent Document Processing (IDP) and RPA work together to automate most document-related activities, freeing up users to focus on more critical tasks. Intelligent Document Processing: A Guide for Building RPA Solutions is a mini guide that gives the readers insights on methods to achieve the best out of Intelligent Document Understanding solutions built within RPA workflows. Further, the mini book provides real-world use cases, technical challenges, best practices, industry trends, links to many external research articles and detailed discussions focussing on building effective and scalable RPA solutions to process documents intelligently. The book also contains the author's personal experiences on multiple intelligent document automation projects. This mini book should be seen as an overview of the current state of technology with practical guidance.
