PYRAMUS and THISBE

Retold many times over is the famous story of Pyramus and Thisbe. Pyramus was a young man and Thisbe was a beautiful maiden. Their families lived next-door to each other in the city of Babylon. Having known each other since childhood, Pyramus and Thisbe developed a deep mutual affection. However, their families had been mortal enemies for many years. Due to this, Pyramus was forbidden to talk to Thisbe and Thisbe was forbidden to talk to Pyramus. The only way to overcome this hurdle was for Pyramus and Thisbe to meet in their own back gardens and to whisper softly through a hole in the adjoining wall. As time went by, Pyramus and Thisbe's love grew stronger.

Many meetings between the pair transpired until Pyramus and Thisbe decided that they could live apart no longer. Despite the feud between their families, they made a plan to wed in secret. Pyramus knew of a mulberry tree near the tomb of Ninus. He asked Thisbe to meet him there the following night and they would run away and elope. Thisbe was delighted with the plan. She couldn't wait to share her feelings with Pyramus under the light of the moon.

The next evening, whilst the rest of her family slept, Thisbe left her bed and slipped out into the night. As it was chilly, she covered her shoulders with a shawl. She walked quickly through the streets and made it to the mulberry tree. Pyramus had not yet arrived.

Content to wait for her lover, Thisbe sat under the tree. However, as she waited, a lioness with blood on its mouth from a previous kill came walking by. Frightened, Thisbe ran to hide in some nearby rocks. Her shawl came loose and fell on the ground. Startled, the lioness picked up the shawl in her jaws.

A little while later, when Pyramus arrived at the mulberry tree, he was surprised to see the lioness. But when he saw Thisbe's shawl in the creature's bloody mouth, he went mad with grief, thinking Thisbe had been killed. Pyramus drew his sword and pierced the blade through his own heart. He slumped beneath the mulberry tree.

When Thisbe finally emerged from her hiding spot, she saw what Pyramus had done. Devastated, she ran to his side. When she realized that he was dying, Thisbe pierced her own heart with the blade. The two lovers died together in each other's arms.
